3 Read the following text, then answer the question :

For a school project, four students - Hoda, Karim, Sara, and Adel - had to work together. The problem was that they were all very different. Hoda was very creative and had lots of ideas. Karim was very organized and liked to make plans. Sara was quiet but a very good writer. Adel, however, was not confident and didn't share his idea.

At their first meeting, they had a small conflict. Hoda wanted to start drawing immediately, but Karim wanted to make a plan first. Sara didn't say anything. They realized they needed a better way to work. Karim suggested, "Let's respect everyone's qualities. First, we can plan. Then, we can be creative." They agreed. They asked Adel for his opinion, and he shyly suggested a very clever idea that nobody had thought of. His confidence grew when he saw his idea was valued. They combined all their strengths and created an amazing project.
